People – Networks – Technologies

People – Networks – Technologies

The dynamic trend towards global competition calls for solutions and instruments that make business activities based on the division of labour more efficient. Logistics is a strategic instrument in the management of worldwide supply chains, but it also plays a key role in individual value-adding processes and directly impacts both company earnings and corporate value.

Combined production concepts in complex networks enable companies to offer their goods at competitive prices and therefore profit from global market growth without abandoning value-adding operations in high-wage countries. The interaction of companies in value added networks calls for intelligent communication and coordination, outstanding employee performance levels and a well-developed infrastructure in order to reliably ensure the necessary mobility of people and goods.

In line with this year's motto of „People – Networks – Technologies“, the annual conference staged by Bundesvereinigung Logistik focuses not only on successful stand-alone formulas but also on ways in which individual strategies can be integrated to underpin competitiveness.

We expect more than 3.000 delegates and about 250 exhibitors. You too can benefit from the exchange of knowledge and experience in the plenary sessions, special-topic sequences, panel sessions and face-to-face discussions.
